THE TUFT OF FLOWERS.

I went to turn the grass once after the sun.

Who mowed it in the dew before the sun.

The dew has gone that made his blade so keen before I came to view the leveled scene.

I looked for him behind an ile of trees; I listened for his whetstone on the breeze.

But he had gone his way, the grass all mown, And I must be, as he had been—alone.

"As all must be," I said within my heart, Whether they work together or apart.

But as I said it, swift there passed me by On noiseless wing a "withered butterfly."

Seeking with memories grown dim O'er night Some resting flower of yesterday's delight.

And once I marked his flight go round and round, As where some flower lay withering on the ground.

And then he flew as far as eye could see, And then on tremulous wing came back to me.

I thought of questions that have no reply, And would have turned to loss the grass to dry;

But he turned first, and led my eye to look At a tall tuft of flowers beside a brook.

A leaping tongue of bloom the saythe had spared Beside a reedy brook the saythe had spared.

I left my place to know them by their name, Finding them butterfly weed when I came.

The mower in the dew had loved them thus, By leaving them to flourish, not for us.

Not yet to draw one thought of ours to him, But from sheer morning gladness at the brim.

The butterfly and I had lit upon Nevertheless, a message from the dawn.

That made me hear the wakening birds around, And hear his long saythe whispering to the ground.

And feel a spirit kindred to my own, So that henceforth I worked no more alone.

But glad with him, I worked as with his aid, And weary, sought at noon with him the shade.

—Robert Frost.

COATTEE DRESSES PROVE POPULAR FAD OF FASHION

American Women Place Stamp of Approval on Latest in Lingerie Frock Imported From French Capital.

(SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE TO MORNING JOURNAL.)

New York, May 8. Nowhere is the American idea of dress more strongly felt than in clothes. Paris offers a wealth of ideas and America selects one. After weeks of hesitation, while the popularity of one style or another in the latest collection received after a perilous trip across the Atlantic, quakes in the balance, the American public, at last, places emphasis on one chosen feature and the coquette dress becomes universal; not a tailored creation, for the name implies, but a sheer confection of lace, net or batiste, topped with a gay silk or lingerie jacket.

So cavalier have fashions become they carry us back to the Cromwellian era. Like spirits of the old French empire, society in lingerie dresses trips across the velvet lawns or loiters in old rose gardens. The other day, I chanced upon a party enjoying tea in the far corner of a green lawn under the shade of a mulberry tree; the black wicker furniture, upholstered in broad stripes, strewn with apple blossoms, was as striking in effect as the frocks the girls wore.

A vivacious dark-eyed Miss, who served tea at the glass-topped table, carried off well the style of the smart coquette in a frock that bespoke the couturier Jenny. The bodice of the frock was a delicate, light-colored silk, with a wide, white, lace-trimmed collar and cuffs. The skirt was a deep blue, with a wide, white, lace-trimmed hem.
